Mr. William D. Howells has just celebrated his 63rd birthday.

Prince Christian, son of the crown prince of Denmark, is said to be the tallest prince in Europe.

The Crown Prince Rudolph's debts amounted to about $2,000,000, although he had an income of $750,000 a year.

Governor Hill, of New York, denies the report that he intends to be married. He says that bachelorhood suits him well enough.

Ex-Senator Labor, of Colorado, began life under Secretary Proctor, working for some time in his marble quarries in Vermont.

Robert Louis Stevenson has presented to King Kalakaua a rare golden pen, accompanied with a little poem describing the gift.

The Marquis of Lorne, it is rumored, is to be governor of Ceylon, with a salary of $40,000 a year. Princess Louise will go with him.

Gen. N. A. M. Dudley, colonel of the First United States Cavalry, will be first for age on Aug. 23, and will thereafter live in Boston.

On the coldest day of this winter ex-Secretary Hugh McCulloch was observed by a Washington Post reporter making calls on foot and without an overcoat.

King Alexander I, the boy sovereign of Serbia, is fast a child than his 18 years bespectacled, headstrong stepson, French, German and Russian, and shows great capacity for study.

The youngest college president in the country is Rev. Dr. Wittie Hyde, of Dordrecht. He was called to the presidency of the college three or four years after his graduation from Harvard.

Justin H. McCarthy, M. P., who is about to publish a novel with the title of "Dolly," expects to make over $10,000 by the sale of the book to American and Australian syndicates.

The poet Tompkins is said to be keeping wonderfully well. He is too energetic to be idle, and he reads his daily paper and preserves full freshness of interest in the events of his time.

Mr. Gladstone agrees with Willie Collins in thinking Scott the first novelist of the century. The "Bride of Lammermoor" is Gladstone's favorite, and he reads it every three or four years.

The wife of John Doyle O'Reilly, the Boston poet, is an invalid, and seldom appears in society. She has a graceful presence and is a brilliant talker. Mr. O'Reilly says of her that she is his best critic.

Berry Hall, the young man of New York, who has acquired notoriety on account of his many pairs of trousers, says that the recently published statement to the effect that he was going to open a tailor's shop is "an infamous lie."

Many lawyers and public men who admired the late Dr. Francis Wharton, the great authority on international law, were not aware that he was an Episcopal clergyman of conspicuously high standing among the clergy of that church.

Mr. Humphrey Ward's husband, as they now call the London Times' article, is building a large country house at Halesmere. Gossips say he ought to call it "Elmwood House," but he will doubtless follow family precedent and name it "Laleham."

Emperor William will be made a knight of the Bath by Queen Victoria when he visits England in July. He will also receive his father's gold collar and insignia. The late emperor's decoration of the garter will be given to Prince Henry of Prussia.

Napoleon Bonaparte was one of thirteen children; Benjamin Franklin, one of seventeen; Charles Dickens, one of eight; Gladstone, one of seven; or more; Dr. Williams' Wakefulness Thackeray, grand-son of the latter namesake, one of sixteen.

Dennis Ryan, who began his career on a western railroad with pick and shovel, and saved his earnings till he had $3,000, with which he bought a Colorado mine, interest is now one of the wealthiest men in St. Paul. He is said to have made $2,000,000 from the mine in a few years.

Many of the late Philip H. Welch's jokes were translated into French and even recited in the Paris papers as original humor. They were translated back into English and copied into American papers as French jokes. When Mr. Welch saw these he used to say: "Now they are funny."

Congressman Washington, of Tennessee, has recently washed his face clean, and he looks so young that when a few days ago he clapped his hands for a page the boys laughed at him. They thought one of their number was playing a joke on them. Mr. Washington was obliged to forcibly undeceive them.

Here is Oscar Wilde's latest. He chanced to call on a lady who had just purchased a number of Japanese screens, which were standing in artistic disorder in her drawing room. "You have come just in time, Mr. Wilde," she said, "and can arrange my screens for me." But Oscar replied: "Oh, don't arrange them; let them alone."

A clever fellow is Capt. Wiseman, the German explorer, who is going to Africa to look after Stanley and Emin. He possesses, says Sir Charles Wilson, "all the qualities of a hero, and the courage of Livingstone's indomitable courage, his constancy of purpose and his timely feelings toward the natives; and he has twice crossed Africa in his widest extent without once firing a shot in anger."
